[Social Impact of Uranium Mining Project Papers 1978-1984 and papers relating to Queensland 1970s]

10 boxes (20 cm), 9 boxes (10 cm)

Diaries, field notebooks, field notes, unpublished papers, reports, correspondence, press clippings.

In 1978 the Minister for Aboriginal Affairs proposed that the Australian Institute for Aboriginal Studies should undertake research on the social impact of uranium mining on Aborigines in the Northern Territory. The AIAS appointed John von Sturmer as the Project Director and Sue Kesteven as Research Fellow. Research work was carried out mainly at Oenpelli. The activities of the project were outlined in six monthly reports to the Minister with final reports in 1984. The papers in this collection consist mainly of Dr. von Sturmer's personal files and notes although some Project correspondence and reports are also included. The complete collection of SIUMP papers are held by the Institute but at this stage remain uncatalogued. This collection also contains various reports, papers and press clippings relating to Queensland Aboriginal Affairs and Aboriginal Education in the 1970s.
