Physical descrip: vii, 338 pages : illustrations, maps, portraits and facsimiles, some of which are in colour ; 21 cm. Annotation: Loves Creek Station is one of the earliest pastoral leases in Central Australia, and once covered nearly 4000 sq km. Gidgee and Grit traces the history of the region from geological beginnings and Aboriginal culture to the early explorers like John McDouall Stuart, and the construction of the Overland Telegraph Line. It highlights the determination and fortitude of the early settlers who chose to eke out a living from this seemingly inhospitable terrain and were, without adequate communications, isolated formonths and often years. It encompasses the transition from horses and camels to motor vehicles and helicopters, from cattle breeding to tourism and, after 100 years of cattle grazing, eventually returning the land to its indigenous owners -- cover description.

Title: Semantic analysis : a practical introduction / Cliff Goddard.
Edition: 2nd. ed.
This lively textbook introduces students and scholars to practical and precise methods for articulating the meanings of words and sentences, and for revealing connections between language and culture. Topics range over emotions, speech acts, words for animals and artifacts, motion, activity verbs, causatives, discourse particles, and nonverbal communication. Alongside English, it features a wide range of other languages, including Malay, Chinese, Japanese, Polish, Spanish, and Australian Aboriginal languages. Undergraduates, graduate students and professional linguists alike will benefit from Goddard's wide-ranging summaries, clear explanations and analytical depth. Meaning is fundamental to language and linguistics. This book shows that the study of meaning can be rigorous, insightful and exciting.

Physical descrip: 270 pages : illustrations (some coloured), music ; 23 cm
ISBN: 9781107028920 (hardback)
Annotation: "Sand stories from Central Australia are a traditional form of Aboriginal women's verbal art that incorporates speech, song, sign, gesture and drawing. Small leaves and other objects may be used to represent story characters. This detailed study of Arandic sand stories takes a multimodal approach to the analysis of the stories and shows how the expressive elements used in the stories are orchestrated together. This richly illustrated volume is essential reading for anyone interested in language and communication. It adds to the growing recognition that language encompasses much more than speech alone, and shows how important it is to consider the different semiotic resources a culture brings to its communicative tasks as an integrated whole rather than in isolation"--

Title: No beating about the bush : 10 years living with the dust, dingoes and extraordinary characters of the Birdsville Track / Val Oldfield, as told by Ashley Mallett.
Copyright date: "2013.
ISBN: 9780646593494 (paperback)
Physical descrip: [8], 208 pages, 16 unnumbered pages of plates: illustrations, facsimiles, 1 map, photographs (some colour), portraits (some colour) ; 25 cm.
Annotation: "The dust, the flies, the dingoes are the only company, sometimes for weeks, the occasional crackle of a voice over a wireless radio from far-flung places- this was the world of Val Oldfield for 10 years when living on Australia's infamous Birdsville Track. ... Val Oldfield was flung into this world as a na*ive newly-wed from an Adelaide seaside suburb in post-war boom years of Australia. No beating about the bush traces her life from childhood years, when she wriggled her little toes in the sand at Semaphore Beach, to her teenage years as a modern young in 1950's miss about town, to the alien environment of The Track and to Val's years beyond."--Back cover. Title: Age differentials between spouses and Australian marriage systems
Annotation: Reviews various polygyny-gerontocracy explanations for the unusual age difference between spouses at 1st marriage in the central desert and N.T.; suggests these are inadequate; Alternative argument; mating systems among hunter-gatherer groups in a stable situation represent systems of affiliation between local groups; Preferential marriage of a male to a female who is his MMBDD; Aranda marriage arrangements depend on large age differences otherwise conflicts arise which negate the utility of marriage alliance; Matrilateral second cross-cousin marriage is ecologically adaptive; Polygyny is then viewed as a by-product of the age difference

Title: Head form and climatic stress
Annotation: Empiric evidence indicates that the general distribution of the cephalic index is explicable in terms of climatic adaptation; based on a sample of 399 populations, the magnitude of the index is statistically different between zones of predominantly dry heat, wet heat, wet cold and dry cold; there is an inverse relationship between the mean cephalic index and temperature; it is argued that the occupation of cold climates is one of the circumstances increasing the frequency of brachycephaly through time; evidence includes cephalic index means for Australian Aborigines (Aranda - central and western, northeast Arnhem Land, northwest Arnhem Land, central and northern Australia, Melville & Bathurst Islands, Victoria River)

Title: Local group composition among the Australian Aborigines : a critique of the evidence from fieldwork conducted since 1930.
Annotation: Historical survey of work on concept of local group; p.115-131; Changes in ecological environment as a result of white contact, dialectical changes (example from Gogo Stn. near Fitzroy Crossing intermediary languages used by Konean, Djaru, Walmadjari, Wonkadjunga & Kokatja tribes to communicate with white men), current reversal of former population decline, comments on Radcliffe-Brown's definition of horde, Hiatt's remoulding of this concept; case 1 - Aranda, contrast in reconstructions of Pink & Strehlow, land claimed by local groups, relationship to totemic clan, membership almost exclusively father & son; case 2 - Walpiri, comments on Meggitt's findings (patrilineal descent groups) fragmentation & reformation of major groups according to seasonal food resources, question of Walpiri communities (Ilpara, Ngalia, Walmala, Waneiga), residential or; dialectical, ecological evidence for size of groups; case 3 - Pintubi, distortion of group structure from wide distribution, comparison with Mandjilkara, Waman & Kardudjara on Canning Stock Route; case 4 - Kimberleys, Piddington shows exceptions among Nadja subtribe of Karadjeri (small parties from any horde hunting over territory of other hordes), doubt on rigidity of clan system related to length of contact; case 5 - Daly River tribes, contrast between Stanner on Murinbata (totemic sites possessed by patrilineal local totemic clan) & Falkenberg (inclusion of clan territory - spiritual associations, within horde territory - food supply); case 6 - Western Desert, land owning group is patrilineal descent group (Berndt), blurring of tribal entities as a result of population drift, importance of dialectical tribe as empirical entity; case 7 - Tiwi, isolation resulted in local developments, inheritance of totemic clans matrilineally, division of tribes into hordes (Hart), occurrence of family holdings, composition of local groups, warping of social values by polygyny; case 8 - northwestern Arnhem Land, criticism of Hiatt's quotation of displaced Fish Ck. natives as example of traditional patterns; case 9 - northeastern Arnhem Land, Warner's account of Murngin clans, local groups larger than most of Australia (better food resources), territoriality associated with clans, Groote Eylandt relationship between clan & territory loose (Worsley); case 10 north central Arnhem Land, Anbara group of Gidjingal, annual seasonal movements & sharing of food resources not a model for generalized conduct nor an exception, length & size of contact reflected in size of tribal dislocation, numbers & sizes of land-owning units as found by Hiatt; case 11 - Wik Munkan, McConnell's reports based on clans (totemic ownership) not residential or ecological groups, rights of clan over territory, system of reciprocal food sharing; case 12 - Jirjoront, recording of patrilineal clans by Sharp, clan ownership of land, ecological balance disturbed, mixing of Ngentjin & Taioir linguistic groups points to breakdown of traditional barriers, variant of relationship between clans, land ownership & residential groups, role of women in selection of daughters husbands, postmarital residence patterns; case 13 - Kaidalit, importance of undisturbed environment, summary of facts from Tindale, strict land rights of eight local groups including offshore islands), careful definition of boundaries, size of groups, relationship of size to food resources; case 14 reports from the instant of contact, analysis of early exploration accounts for population data provides generalized data for ecological models; conclusion reasserts the validity of the Australian Aboriginal local group as the primary landowning unit; p.132-137; Comments, 1) by R.M. Berndt criticises selection of material, discussion of alien contact, emphasis on distinction between land-owning and land-occupying groups; 2) by E. Colson - notes different aims of Radcliffe- Brown and younger anthropologists, emphasises value of ecology in regulation of group size; 3) by Robert Cresswell - concept of ownership questioned; 4) by A.P. Elkin - refutes criticisms of fieldwork, use of Karadjeri example (related local groups, with one dialect, associated with country), insistence of Karadjeri on local exogamy, emphasis on territorial & linguistic changes, criticism of; contact summary; 5) by L.R. Hiatt - refutes authors criticism of attribution of rigidity to Radcliffe-Brown's theory, clarifies Tindale's work with Kaidalit; 6) by Bernard J. James - degenerative & regenerative phases of Aboriginal culture noted, problems of studying traditional beliefs in modern surroundings; 7) by W.E.H. Stanner - supports Birdsell's article, confirmation of Birdsell's population data; 8) by Jack O. Waddell - praise for ecological approach, support for Radcliffe-Brown's concept of patrilineal landholding horde; 9) by Richard A. Waterman - criticism of Birdsell's concept of group size, notes grouping of Aborigines around Yirkalla Mission, criticism of Hiatt's concept of local group system, Yirkalla people said to consider horde as basic unit, reaffirmation; of existence of hordes; p.138-141; Reply by J.B. Birdsell - rebuttal in three sections 1) frame-work of critique, 2) validity of data, 3) differences of opinion

Title: Sustaining women's Yawulyu/Awelye: some practitioners' and learners' perspectives / Linda Barwick
Publication date: 2013
Annotation: "In 2010 the authors visited various Central Australian communities, including Willowra, Tennant Creek, Alekarenge, Barrow Creek and Ti Tree, to interview some of our research collaborators past and present about how they saw the present and future of their yawulyu/awelye traditions. Yawulyu (in Warlpiri and Warumungu) and Awelye (in Kaytetye and other Arandic languages) are cognate names for women's country-based rituals, including songs, dancing, ritual objects and knowledge surrounding particular country and Dreaming stories. In the course of our research we spoke to women from different communities, different age groups, different language groups, and different clans, seeking to open discussion about past and contemporary practices of learning, performing and teaching this performance-based knowledge, to help us understand what the practitioners saw as the most fruitful ways of sustaining the traditions, as well as what difficulties they saw in their way. In this article we present statements from many of the women interviewed, highlighting the key issues that emerged and discussing the importance of recordings and other documentation of performances for the future sustainability of the various yawulyu/awelye traditions discussed.” [Author's abstract]

Title: PAW Media and Communications
Physical descrip: 1 online resource : colour illustrations
Abstract: “PAW Media and Communications is an Aboriginal media organisation situated at Yuendumu in the Northern Territory of Australia. We are a Remote Indigenous Media Organisaton (RIMO) providing coordination services to RIBS (Remote Indigenous Broadcast Service) in the wider Tanami area of Central Australia. For thirty years, we’ve been creating television, radio and music in the remote Aboriginal community of Yuendumu. Working with local people in language and according to local cultural protocols we create unique Aboriginal media productions. In the PAW Media area, people have an Aboriginal language as their first language, as well as being fluent in another two or three Aboriginal languages, and English. Nevertheless whilst languages such as Warlpiri have a relatively high number of speakers, the languages are being “lightened” with the introduction of English words into the vocabulary, as well as the loss of “old” or “first” language registers. A key role of PAW Media therefore is the production of radio, video and music in language to support language retention. Media workers at PAW Media are language speakers producing our content in language. The languages spoken in our area include: Alyawarr, (Central) Anmatyerr, (Eastern) Anmatyerr, (Eastern) Arrente, Gurindji, Kaytete, Luritja, Pintubi, Warlpiri, Warumungu" -- Taken from About

Physical descrip: 2 sound discs (CDs): digital; 4 3/4 in.+
Abstract: The Song Peoples Sessions is a collaboration between traditional and contemporary Australian Indigenous musicians to support the protection of intangible cultural heritage and maintenance of Indigenous languages and traditional song cycles, creating new forms of musical cultural expression. This project is first being delivered in the Barkly Region of the Northern Territory through Barkly Regional Arts and the Winanjjikari Music Centre funded by the Australian Government Maintenance of Indigenous Languages and Records Program and the Northern Territory Department of Education and Training and the McArthur River Mine Community Benefits Trust, Arts NT, the Scully Trust and the Fred Hollows Foundation. Warren recorded an album celebrating Tennant Creek and the Warumungu people with contemporary and traditional music. Warren's songs were founded on highlighting the Song Peoples project's purpose to affirm Indigenous identity and reinforce and maintain traditional cultural material and language. During Warren's sessions, elders from all over the...
Barkly region, including Dick Foster, Michael Jones, Colin Freddy, Peppy Simpson, Banjo Johnny, Michael Williams, Bobby Thompson and Harry Morrison, took part in the recording of traditional songs. Annotation pending
