Curator (Art and Object)

APS Level 6

Ongoing, Full-time

$77,912 - $88,620

This is an Identified position

Who we are

We are Australia's only national institution focused exclusively on the diverse history, cultures, and heritage of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Australia. We house the world's most important and extensive collection of cultural information and material and we provide leadership, publish and promote greater understanding and appreciation of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples. We create opportunities for people the world over to engage with and be transformed by the knowledge, the culture and the story of Australia's Indigenous peoples. We are Australia's national institution for leadership in Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander research.

What we do

We care for a priceless collection, including films, photographs, video and audio recordings as well as the world's largest collection of printed and other resource materials for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander studies. We undertake and encourage scholarly, ethical, community-based research in a variety of sectors, including health, native title, languages and education. Our publishing house, Aboriginal Studies Press, regularly publishes outstanding writing that promotes Australian Indigenous cultures. Our activities affirm and raise awareness of the richness and diversity of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander cultures and histories.

Ngurra: The National Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Cultural Precinct

The recently announced Ngurra Cultural Precinct will be nationally significant in speaking to the central place that Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples hold in Australia's story.

It will comprise two key elements:

- A National Indigenous Knowledge and Cultural Centre where Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Australia tells its own stories and celebrates the 65,000-year history of this nation. It will include education, exhibition and gallery spaces in a new fit-for purpose home for AIATSIS.
- A National Resting Place to house and care for repatriated limited provenance ancestral remains and any associated cultural material on their journey back to Country.

What we are trying to achieve

Our functions are established under the Australian Institute of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Studies Act 1989.

These functions are to:

- develop, preserve and provide access to a national collection of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander culture and heritage;
- use that national collection to strengthen and promote knowledge and understanding of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander culture and heritage;
- provide leadership in the fields of:
 - Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander research; and
 - ethics and protocols for research, and other activities relating to collections, related to Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples; and use (including use for research) of that national collection and other collections containing Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander culture and heritage;
- lead and promote collaborations and partnerships among the academic, research, non-government, business and government sectors and Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples in support of the other functions of the Institute;
- provide advice to the Commonwealth on the situation and status of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander culture and heritage.

We are an Australian Government statutory authority. The Minister responsible for AIATSIS is the Hon Ken Wyatt AM, Minister for Indigenous Australians, and it sits within the portfolio of the Department of the Prime Minister and Cabinet.

About the Collection Development and Management Program

The Collection Development and Management Program is one of two programs in the AIATSIS Collection Services Group, other being the Collection Preservation and Digitisation Program.

The Collection Development and Management Program consists of Collection Development Unit, Audiovisual, Photographic, and Manuscript Collection Management Units, Descriptive Metadata and Cataloguing Unit, Rights Management Unit, and Collection Transformation Unit.

The Collection Development Unit is responsible for coordinating donations and acquisitions of material in all formats, management of the registration function, management of the Art and Object collection, curatorial projects, and conservation services. The team includes Curators, a Senior Conservator, a Registrar and a Registration Officer.

About the Role

The key responsibilities of the Curator (Art and Object) role include:

- advancing and implementing the Collection Development Strategy through the assessment, selection and accessioning of material for the Art and Object collection
- providing specialist advice and answering enquiries about the Art and Object Collection
- training and supervision
- engaging and collaborating with external stakeholders, including Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples, donors to the Collection, and professionals from other collecting institutions
- contributing to the development of online and physical exhibitions and displays.

The successful candidate may be responsible for undertaking work related to the care and management of items with cultural sensitivities. Sensitivities may include but are not limited to gender, ceremonial or initiation restrictions as well as the use of offensive terminology. The completion of these tasks is supported by cultural and institutional safety procedures and protocols, as well as those personally identified by the successful candidate.

This position reports to the Assistant Director, Collection Development.

Our ideal candidate

The ideal candidate will demonstrate:

- an understanding of how a major specialist collection can meet the needs of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people and researchers. This includes familiarity with contemporary best practice in the development and care of Indigenous collections, Indigenous Cultural and Intellectual Property Rights, and the ethics of using collection material to share Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander stories.
- experience in delivering curatorial projects and developing and managing collections, including assessing the suitability of material for the AIATSIS collection
- effective and respectful verbal and written communication skills

- an ability to develop positive relationships with key stakeholders, collaborate across teams and convey information about the collection
- high level organisational skills, with the ability to effectively manage numerous tasks and identify broader factors, trends and influences that may impact on own and team's work
- relevant tertiary qualifications in Indigenous studies, cultural heritage, library and information management or a related field. Equivalent relevant skills and practices will be recognised.

Cultural Capability

The ideal candidate will:

- understand Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander business within the agency and the outcomes the agency is responsible for delivering
- understand current issues facing Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples and how these are framed by history
- work within cultural and community protocols to deliver results.

What we offer

Opportunities for further education, professional development and study assistance will be available. You can also expect personal development planning activities and to work in a supportive learning environment.

We understand that you will work best when you have a healthy work-life balance and can attend to your family commitments. We offer flexible working conditions, competitive leave entitlements and health and wellbeing programs.

How to apply

If this sounds like the opportunity you are looking for, we want to hear from you! Send your completed application to recruitment@aiatsis.gov.au by 11.59pm on Monday 23rd May 2022

- Referring to 'Our Ideal Candidate', provide a succinct summary (no more than 1550 words) outlining your skills, knowledge and experience demonstrating why you should be considered for this role.

- Complete the enclosed application form.
- Attach your resume, covering your personal details, education and qualifications, work and other relevant experience.

What should I include in my supporting statement?

Your application should be brief and align to the requirements specified in the vacancy information published on our website. Generally, we do not use selection criteria for applications unless they are specific technical requirements.

How will my application be assessed?

You will be assessed on your resume and your response to 'Our Ideal Candidate'. Your response should be succinct and demonstrate your ability to meet the requirements of the job and should complement your resume. Your resume should be comprehensive enough to show that you have the experience and/or qualifications to undertake the duties and responsibilities of the job. Because this is an Identified position your resume should include your knowledge of and experience with Aboriginal and/or Torres Strait Islander cultures, issues, communities and engagement.

A selection decision may be based solely on your written application and referee reports, and it is the quality, rather than the quantity of your written submissions that is the most critical factor.

Your cultural competency will carry more weight than other factors in the assessment. These requirements are based on the information provided to you as part of the job opportunity.

Your referees may also be contacted at any stage of the assessment process to validate your claims. For this reason it is important that you advise them that you have applied for a role at AIATSIS, and that you feel confident they will be able to support your application.

If you need assistance developing your response you may want to refer to the applying for jobs on the Australian Public Service Commission website:

FAQ

What are Affirmative Measures and Identified Positions?

The Australian Public Service (APS) advertises some jobs as Affirmative Measures and/or Identified positions. The two classifications are similar but serve different purposes.

Affirmative Measures positions

Jobs in the APS are open to all Australian citizens. There are some jobs, though, that are open only to specific members of the Australian population. This practice is known as an Affirmative Measure, and is a targeted strategy to ensure the diversity of the APS workforce reflects the diversity of the Australian population.

Any job can be restricted to Aboriginal and/or Torres Strait Islander people only, and it doesn't necessarily have to involve working on Indigenous issues. If a position has been advertised as an Affirmative Measure, it will be clearly marked as such.¹

The use of the Indigenous Affirmative Measures provision at AIATSIS allows for targeted recruitment of Indigenous Australians into the organisation. If you are applying for an Affirmative Measures position, you will need to indicate your Aboriginal and/or Torres Strait Islander heritage on our application form and provide confirmation if required.

Identified positions

Identified positions are roles that require people to have an understanding of the issues affecting Indigenous Australians and a proven ability to communicate sensitively with them. These requirements are generally for jobs that involve providing services or developing policies for Indigenous Australians, and/or direct interaction with Indigenous communities.

Identified positions are crucial in ensuring that the APS has the right people working on initiatives to improve the delivery of services and close the gap between Indigenous and non-Indigenous Australians, and are open to all Australian citizens².

At AIATSIS all positions are Identified positions where candidates are required to demonstrate an understanding of the diversity of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples, their cultures, and their issues and to be able to communicate respectfully with them.

You must provide the name and contact details of an Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander referee. This referee will be contacted to determine your cultural capability.

² <https://www.apsc.gov.au/indigenous-employmentaffirmative-measure-and-identified-positions>

What is Cultural Capability?

As all positions at AIATSIS are 'Identified' each position will have various elements of involvement with the delivery of Indigenous specific services, programs and policies as part of AIATSIS core functions. AIATSIS therefore needs to also identify the cultural knowledge; skills and personal attributes needed to deliver the required outcomes. Every part of how we work, who we work with and for, requires varying levels of knowledge of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander cultures, protocols and an understanding of issues that enable effective communication and ultimately effective performance in the role. To assist you in determining the required cultural capabilities of this role, you can refer to the Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Cultural Capability – A Framework for Commonwealth Agencies
