Contents

Illustrations viii
The contributors ix
Preface xiii

Part 1   On the home front
1. ‘Light in the darkness’: Elizabeth McKenzie Hatton 3
   John Maynard
2. ‘The mother of the home’: Jennie Parsons Smith 28
   Christine Brett Vickers
3. ‘A devotion I hope I may fully repay’: Joan Kingsley-Strack 57
   Victoria Haskins

Part 2   Shared struggle
4. ‘Same bodies, different skin’: Ruth Heathcock 83
   Karen Hughes
5. ‘Never forgotten’: Pearl Gibbs (Gambanyi) 107
   Stephanie Gilbert

Part 3   Public lives
6. ‘Whatever her race, a woman is not a chattel’: 129
   Mary Montgomery Bennett
   Alison Holland

www.aboriginalstudiespress.com
7. ‘Would have known it by the smell of it’: Ella Hiscocks
   Anna Cole

8. ‘For a brighter day’: Constance Ternent Cooke
   Fiona Paisley

Part 4  ‘Knowing’ the Aborigines

9. ‘Bye and bye when all the natives have gone’:
   Daisy Bates and Billinge
   Cynthia Coyne

10. ‘A glorious thing is to live in a tent in the infinite’:
    Daisy Bates
    Jim Anderson

11. ‘I drew very close to these men, sharing their dilemma…’:
    Elizabeth Durack
    Franchesca Cubillo

12. ‘To put on record, as faithfully as possible’:
    Catherine Martin
    Margaret Allen

References

Index