[Jango v Northern Territory of Australia \(includes Summary\) \[2006\] FCA 318 \(31 March 2006\)](#)

Summary: The applicants seek a determination in respect of the Town of Yulara in the Northern Territory ('the Application Area'), which comprises an area of 104 square kilometres. The members of the compensation claim group are almost exclusively Yankunytjatjara or Pitjantjatjara people who, according to the applicants, held native title rights and interests in the Application Area and are entitled to compensation because their rights and interests were extinguished by certain 'compensation acts' that occurred over the period 1979 to 1992. The applicants say that the Northern Territory is liable under the NTA to pay compensation.

Compromised Jurisprudence: Native title cases since Mabo

Lisa Strelein

Practitioners, scholars, teachers and students would be well advised to add this volume to their collection. David Ritter

Compromised Jurisprudence traces the development of the courts' thinking from the original decision in Mabo v Queensland [No.2] through to the significant High Court decisions in 2001 in Western Australia v Ward and Yorta Yorta, and the subsequent implementation of those cases by the Federal Court in cases such as De Rose. Each chapter contains a discrete analysis of the most significant cases. A timeline maps the trajectory of the key doctrines and the book's conclusion identifies the underlying themes and contradictions.

Rob Riley: An Aboriginal leader's quest for justice

Quentin Beresford

The life portrayed in these pages will above all else challenge our capacity to look into this blighted page of our history and deal with and understand the nature of our national racist cancer. Patrick Dodson, Broome.

I cannot think of a finer introduction to Aboriginal politics in the contemporary era. I urge all Australian citizens who care about reconciliation to read it. Professor Robert Manne

Widely regarded as one of the great Aboriginal leaders of the modern era, Rob Riley was at the centre of debates that polarised views on race relations in Australia: national land rights, the treaty, deaths in custody, self-determination, the justice system, native title and the Stolen Generations.

Set against the tumultuous background of racial politics in an unreconciled nation, the book explores Rob's life as a 'moral protester' and the challenges he confronted in trying to change the destiny of the nation.

Draft Position Statement on Mining and Indigenous Peoples Issues 29 Mar 2006

Relationships between the mining and metals industry and Indigenous Peoples should be based on respect, meaningful engagement and mutual benefit. They should also be guided by national policies and legislative frameworks developed in consultation with Indigenous Peoples. These are among the main issues covered in an ICMM Draft Position Statement on Mining and Indigenous Peoples Issues, recently approved for consultation by International Council on Mining and Metals CEO-led Council.

Native Title Conference 2006: Tradition and Change, Culture and Commerce

Darwin, 24 – 26 May 2006 The activity around this year's Native Title Conference has created another exciting and important program of events. This year the conference is co-convened by AIATSIS and the Northern Land Council, and hosted by the Larrakia people, traditional owners of the Darwin region, under the auspices of the Larrakia Nation. The conference formally begins on the Wednesday evening with a Welcome Ceremony hosted by Larrakia elders, and includes performances by Alison Mills and the Kenbi Dancers. The following morning, the Mabo lecture will be delivered by Galarrwuy Yunupingu, leader of the Gumatj clan. John Basten, Patrick Dodson, Marcia Langton, and Phillip Ruddock are our keynote speakers, presenting in morning plenary sessions on Thursday and Friday. After the keynotes the conference breaks into streams on current issues in native title law and practice, including the nature of proof, trial and mediation practice, compensation, taxation, PBCs, sea and water rights, and the native title amendments. The conference concludes on the Friday night with the conference dinner.

The themes of the conference – tradition and change, culture and commerce – are reflected in the conference program with a panel discussion on the Yulara decision, a breakout session on land justice in Victoria, and several sessions focused on creating opportunities for economic development. The conference will also be a highlight of the Northern Land Council's program of events celebrating 30 years of land rights in the Northern Territory. The program includes presentations on the current amendments to the Northern Territory Land Rights Act, and films and discussion about the history of land rights.

Before the Welcome Ceremony, Native Title Representative Body delegates have been invited to participate in pre-conference workshops held all day on the Wednesday. These workshops are for NTRB delegates only and will cater for the various areas of interest and expertise within NTRBs.

The Native Title Conference is now in its seventh year having been previously held in Coffs Harbour, Melbourne, Townsville, Geraldton, Alice Springs and Adelaide. Each conference has been strongly supported by staff and council of the native title representative bodies, native title claimants and holders, their legal counsel, native title practitioners such as anthropologists, government institutions and departments, politicians, judges, academics and others. Last year's conference attracted close to 500 delegates. If you would like to join us in Darwin, please go to our website for further information: <http://ntru.aiatsis.gov.au/events/conference2006.html> The conference public program and the NTRB program are now available for downloading.

Cape York Institute

Staffing in near future (next 2-3 months):

We are beginning recruiting for the Deputy Director role: The Deputy Director is accountable, through the Director to the Board, for the successful operations of CYI. This is an opportunity to play a critical role in addressing the social and economic development needs of Cape York, and in building one of the most innovative and influential public policy organisations in Australia. In conjunction with Balkanu and Cape York Partnerships, we are also looking to hire 20 people to work on a Welfare Reform Project to redesign welfare payments and accelerate community renewal in four remote communities in Cape York. This project aims to work with government and communities to create a "New Deal" on Welfare for these remote communities. It is a bold effort to address some of the first causes of passivity in Cape York, as a fundamental element of Indigenous disadvantage. As well as restructuring income support payments to provide more incentive towards work, study and family responsibilities, the project aims to secure government investment in infrastructure, capabilities (such as health, education, mobility), and the enabling structures required to make change stick (such as Income Management and Justice Groups). The project also seeks to work with the four communities to develop their social norms, a community vision and ways of addressing dysfunctional behaviour. The available roles fall under a number of categories:

- Welfare Reform Project Manager (1 Position): Lead and manage delivery of project. Organise and develop a robust, detailed proposal for a "New Deal" on welfare with community and government support for implementation.
 - Design Stream (8 Positions): Detailed design work to restructure 5 welfare payment streams. Detailed work to develop investment requirements in infrastructure, capabilities and enabling structures. Based in Cairns
 - Community Engagement Stream (9 Positions): Work with community members and leaders in developing a community vision, including community views in design, educating and informing communities around the project, and assisting community development and governance. These roles are based in remote communities of Hopevale, Aurukun, Coen and Mossman Gorge.
 - Admin and Media Support (2 Positions): Admin and media support for the project. Based in Cairns
- Formal position descriptions will be available on the CYI website shortly. <http://www.cyi.org.au>
