Recent Cases (Australia)

[Jango v Northern Territory of Australia \(includes Summary\) \[2006\] FCA 318 \(31 March 2006\)](#)

Summary: The applicants seek a determination in respect of the Town of Yulara in the Northern Territory ('the Application Area'), which comprises an area of 104 square kilometres. The members of the compensation claim group are almost exclusively Yankunytjatjara or Pitjantjatjara people who, according to the applicants, held native title rights and interests in the Application Area and are entitled to compensation because their rights and interests were extinguished by certain 'compensation acts' that occurred over the period 1979 to 1992. The applicants say that the Northern Territory is liable under the NTA to pay compensation.

[Riley v State of Queensland \[2006\] FCA 72 \(Western Yalanji determination\)](#)

[Turrbal People v State of Queensland \(with Corrigendum dated 10 March 2006\) \[2006\] FCA 187 \(2 March 2006\)](#)

(1). Leave be given to amend the application in accordance with annexure 'DPB1' to the affidavit of Dale Patrick Brown sworn 1 February 2006 and filed herein, subject to the proviso that such amendment is not to include any area of land or waters that was not covered by the original application in May 1998.

(2) The proposed application stand as the amended application and the filing of the amended application be dispensed with.

(3). A further copy of the application, with the typographical errors identified and corrected, should be filed and served on the parties to the Part A proceedings.

Rob Riley: An Aboriginal leader's quest for justice

Quentin Beresford

The life portrayed in these pages will above all else challenge our capacity to look into this blighted page of our history and deal with and understand the nature of our national racist cancer. Patrick Dodson, Broome.

I cannot think of a finer introduction to Aboriginal politics in the contemporary era. I urge all Australian citizens who care about reconciliation to read it. Professor Robert Manne

Widely regarded as one of the great Aboriginal leaders of the modern era, Rob Riley was at the centre of debates that polarised views on race relations in Australia: national land rights, the treaty, deaths in custody, self-determination, the justice system, native title and the Stolen Generations.

Set against the tumultuous background of racial politics in an unreconciled nation, the book explores Rob's life as a 'moral protester' and the challenges he confronted in trying to change the destiny of the nation.

Compromised Jurisprudence: Native title cases since Mabo

Lisa Strelein

Practitioners, scholars, teachers and students would be well advised to add this volume to their collection. David Ritter

Compromised Jurisprudence traces the development of the courts' thinking from the original decision in Mabo v Queensland [No.2] through to the significant High Court decisions in 2001 in Western Australia v Ward and Yorta Yorta, and the subsequent implementation of those cases by the Federal Court in cases such as De Rose. Each chapter contains a discrete analysis of the most significant cases. A timeline maps the trajectory of the key doctrines and the book's conclusion identifies the underlying themes and contradictions.

Opportunities

Call for papers-extended Native Title Conference 2006

Please note that the Call for Papers submission deadline has been extended until TUESDAY 11 APRIL 2006. In addition to papers addressing the subthemes:

- 30 years on: land rights and its influence on native title
- Towns, communities and development
- Sea rights
- Creating economic opportunities

We would like to include a panel to discuss recent cases and anthropological theory - this may include issues raised by Yulara that have been discussed over the last few days; concepts in Rubibi and De Rose suggesting that there is no dichotomy between laws relating to land and other laws (what does this mean in the context of defining native title 'rights' in relation to land?). In addition we are interested in papers on practice issues such as state connection guidelines; conference of experts. If you are interested in giving a paper on these or other topics relating to the sub-themes: please contact: Dr Lisa Strelein on lisa.strelein@aiatsis.gov.au or phone: 02 6246 1155.

Further information about the Conference (including conference registration form, accommodation and travel information) is available at: <http://ntru.aiatsis.gov.au/events/conference2006.html>.
